

Wildfires run rampant

The wildfires in Australia are still blazing. Time magazine has said "Currently, fires are largely burning across the states of Victoria, where Melbourne is; New South Wales, where Sydney is; and South Australia, where Adelaide is." Gladly there are hundreds of people that are out there doing their very best to save as many animals and lives as possible.

Lots of wonderful animals saved

These animals are truly wonderful for being able to survive the intense conditions of a wild fire. The animals actually seem to be looking out for one another even helping each other with food and other needs. Even though these are trying times everybody is coming together and making all of the right decisions to help fix this and make sure it gets over quickly and smoothly.
